

Strategy 2030

(Resolution of the Accreditation Council dated September 23, 2026)

5

At its 130th meeting at the Bauhaus-University Weimar, the Accreditation Council adopted the goal of streamlining, simplifying, and increasing the efficiency of its procedures as a foundation for its strategic work plan for the current term of office, which runs through the end of 2029.

- 10 Drawing on eight years of experience with the accreditation system reformed in 2018 and based on the model statutory ordinance renewed by the federal states at the end of 2024, the Council will critically review its processes and practices to identify areas where simplifications can be achieved. In particular, it aims to substantially reduce the processing times for applications. Further considerations concern the practice of
- 15 granting accreditation, particularly in program accreditation, and a more intensive exchange with higher education institutions on how they can optimize internal processes in accordance with the quality criteria.

The Accreditation Council intends to fully leverage the potential for simplifying accreditation procedures, while remaining committed to the quality of education and the participation of stakeholders

20. It is committed to improved cooperation with higher education institutions, agencies, and states, and aims to focus accreditation more strongly on its core objectives as defined by the State Treaty, including support for the autonomy of higher education.

The Accreditation Council aims to see substantial results as early as 2027

25 .